Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Transitions in lifestyle, institutional knowledge, and technical awareness, deeply affecting who we are, and how we live, have characterized the human melodramatic cycle. Today's events especially, tend to sober new watchers of these sorts of things, but those with trained eyes may see yesterday in even the newest manifestation. Relics From The Distant Past a selection of prose and poetry written by Douglas D. Waters, captures glimpses, historically, into developments which have impacted, to a greater or lesser degree, his life. His effort offers insights that may instruct, amuse, or stimulate thinking so that one's rear-view mirror continues to help guide his way forward. Maryland born and raised, the author reflects on the ancient to past modern era in his observations. Contemplations on an early life working on Maryland's farms, its seashore (Mosquitoes and Mo Mosquitoes); commentaries on religious traditions (Was Jesus really instructed in Tibet?), the amusing 1st century circulated tale of John and the Bedbugs ; momentous events relived(who can forget The Greatest Game Ever Played -Colts/Giants? - Maryland's falls and...
