Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Large Print. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Dad glared at me and muttered under his breath, I think it's great you two go someplace together. But if you're going to spend money, go someplace I won't take her, like Europe. Maybe next time. He shook his head and yelled at the defensive linebacker on TV. I'm worried. We'll call you every day. How does that sound? I'm worried about New York. No telling what trouble you two will get into there. I do not get into trouble, I protested. Then, as an afterthought, Not anymore. He grumbled and cracked open another peanut. This is a bad idea. I want to do something special for my birthday, Dad. Go somewhere I've never been. Branson, Missouri, has some great concerts. I'll go with you to Branson. I don't want to travel some tourist trap, Dad, I pleaded. I want to do something memorable . . . fun . . . interesting. Dollywood's interesting. Dad, why don't you come with us? He shook his head and flipped through the channels. He hated commercials. I ain't going to New York! Dirty, big, noisy, crazy people . . . they can keep it for all I care. He looked at me and popped another peanut into his mouth. Don't take her to any of those shady, New York, low-life places, like gay bars. Relax, Dad, I laughed. A gay bar is probably the safest place for her to be. He looked me dead in the eye and said, She's your responsibility. If anything happens to her, I'm blaming you. What...
