HarperCollins Publishers India Pvt. Ltd., Noida, India, 2013. Soft cover. Book Condition: New. Johnson Thhat is the notorious bikini murderer who has eluded justice for decades and whose penchant for violence and amoral games can perhaps go unmatched. However, now twenty years after the last known victim had been put down, the ex-policeman Inspector Pradhan finds him. Hiding in a casino in Kathmandu, Pradhan recognizes the notorious criminal and takes him into custody. The novel then proceeds to a trial that leaves Pradhan slightly jittery over the masterminds true intentions as he has successfully evaded the law for too long to return in such runny manner. But Thhat wants to cut a deal with Pradhan as he wants a book written about his story and in return to reveal the truth about Mary Ann Smolinsky, an American who had disappeared in Kathmandu over two decades ago. Thhat reveals a somewhat sketchy account of his life where he first recounts his childhood in Vietnam and later in Paris with his mother and her lover. Thhat started with petty crimes which gradually escalated to a career of bloody and remorseless serial killing. The catalyst was meeting his partner and lover Ravina in Bombay. The couple begins their operation in Bangkok and Thhat reveals the modus operandi of luring gullible tourists with the promise of selling them smuggled diamonds at a reduced rate. They would then murder them for their belongings. Thhat lands himself in jail but he is soon able to escape by masquerading as a monk. He soon conducts the same modus operandi in India and his victims are the foreign tourists. However again with a operation goes bad, this time with a group of French tourists, he lands himself in Tihar jail. The details are all revealed as excerpts from...
