From the skyscrapers of the Upper East Side of Manhattan to a mud hut set against the timeless sands of Egypt, Racing the Setting Sun is the tale of a woman who finds the courage to leave an unhappy marriage. In Egypt, the author discovers the beauty of a land of which she always dreamed and an awakened sexuality with Salah, her young guide. The author calls the primitive village on the Nile from which the guide hails, home. There she finds a deep-rooted love for his family. She experiences the often disturbing treatment of women in another culture. An astonishing story of magic and beauty, Racing the Setting Sun speaks to two hemispheres, to all women and all men. I lived high up in the mountains near the Pharonic noble tombs, with a people whose lives had not changed in eons. I felt I was living a page out of the Bible; homes lacked running water, and donkeys had to haul the precious cargo up from the distant wells of the Nile delta to dry, parched mountains...
