The word, at any rate, must remain in office now; it is far too firmly fixed to be dislodged, replied the New Book. The truth is, we delineate objects by the rays of the sun; but not by the light or the heat, strictly speaking, possessed by those rays; but by certain chemical properties belonging to them. We will not enter into that matter, however; it is sufficient for our purpose to know that the rays of the sun are able to effect chemical changes upon certain substances, especially upon the salts of silver--that is, the compounds formed by the union of silver with an acid. I have long been aware, said the Mystery, that light hath a darkening influence upon horn silver. That fact was duly noted and...
